COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course surveys various conceptual and theoretical frameworks for studying contemporary international relations. By combining theoretical and issue-specific approaches, the course intends to offer contending explanations about power, security, economic development, war and strife. Special attention will be paid on three different levels of analyzing international relations – the individual, the state and the international system. Furthermore, we will examine traditional theories of international relations such as realism, liberalism and novel approaches (e.g. constructivism), as well different methods of inquiry that they employ.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

The students are expected to become familiar with major arguments in the literature, develop different analytical skills and apply them to contemporary cases of international politics. For this purpose, students should be able to identify core concepts such as relative and absolute gains, rationality, anarchy, etc and different components of each theory such as core assumptions, variables and explanatory models. Furthermore, they should become familiar with arguments in favor or against the relevance of variables such as military and economic power and strategy, democracy, economic interdependence etc. Lastly, the students should be able to relate policies and contemporary cases to theoretical models and present persuasive arguments based on the strengths and weaknesses of the various arguments.

Please note that grades represent NON-NEGOTIABLE assessments of a student's comprehension of course material.

Policies and Caveats:

If you have a disability that affects your performance in class, please notify the instructor at the beginning of the term in order to find an accommodation that meets best student's interests. Also, for advice and assistance you may contact the college's disability services office [need to check with Muskingum policies on disabilities!!!].

Students are expected to attend class, and attendance will be recorded at each class meeting. In the case of medical or other extraordinary circumstances, I should be informed PRIOR to the test about the student's impending absence by email and documentation must be provided when you return to class. Absences due to illness or injury will not be excused retroactively unless documentation is provided to the instructor. A student who misses a total of FOURTEEN (1/3) or more class meetings will receive a class participation grade of zero (0), and may also have his or her overall course grade reduced. A student who has a total of TWENTY (1/2) or more unexcused absences will receive a course grade of F.

I do NOT plan makeup examinations or quizzes. Missing an exam without prior permission of the instructor may result in a zero on that exam. Make-up tests will only be arranged in special cases, so please be sure to let me know as soon as possible if you will not be able to attend at the scheduled time.

Please note that the article discussions are important components of this course. Their purpose is to have the students familiarize themselves with original pieces of research and the presentation of the different arguments in the field of IR. Prior to the class discussion, a reading guide will be posted and the discussion will be organized around it. Please note that the students have a leading role assigned in the article discussion and the instructor's involvement is limited only to facilitating the discussion.

Lastly, I need to remind you that all of the work you submit in this course is expected to be your own. Students should review the Muskingum code of student conduct and be aware of all activities defined as academic dishonesty. Although I do encourage students to exchange ideas and/or work together on certain assignments, each student is responsible for completing and submitting his or her own homework. Please be advised that according to Muskingum Code of Student Conduct “all forms of dishonesty and misconduct including, but not limited to the following are prohibited:

a. Cheating plagiarism, or other forms of academic dishonesty (these cases are adjudicated through the processes administered by the Vice-President for Academic Affairs)” ¹

For further information on plagiarism and appropriate citation visit the University of Wisconsin-Madison website and check a detailed instructional brochure about references on my webpage: http://www.wisc.edu/writing/Handbook/DocAPSA_PC.html

Please do not forget that all cell phones and pagers should be turned off completely (not muted!!!) during class time and I will be very disappointed to hear ring tones during our class.

READINGS:

1) The following two textbooks are required. They are available as a package at discounted price:

3) There are readings in addition to the required textbook. Most readings will be available on the Internet via the class web page on Blackboard or links from Blackboard. When electronic versions of readings are not available, paper copies will be distributed in class or course pack will be available in the library and/or one of the university bookstores.
