

Solving any problem in your life is going to require you to understand what the problem is, have a hypothesis as to how to solve it, and have a process for trying to solve it and for evaluating how you're solving it. That's research. It's a really important skill no matter what.

MARK BLENNER

McQueen-Quattlebaum Associate Professor of Chemical and Biomolecular Engineering